Question 1

- Question ID: BK02_CH02_LA_001
- Type: Long Answer
- Difficulty: Easy
- Bloom Level: Understanding
- Topic: Comprehensive Analysis 1
- Marks: 5

Question: Write a simple summary of Chapter 02 'Four Brahmins'.

- Answer Key: A wise sage had four disciples. Three of them were very clever in learning magic skills, while the fourth was a simpleton who took time to learn. One day, the three clever Brahmins decided to go to town to earn money. The fourth friend wanted to join them, so he offered to cook and clean for them. On their journey, they rested under a tree and found a pile of animal bones. To show off their magic, the first Brahmin rebuilt the skeleton, and the second Brahmin added flesh, organs, and skin, creating a lion's body. The third Brahmin wanted to bring the lion back to life. The fourth friend warned them that the lion would devour them, but they mocked him. The fourth Brahmin wisely climbed up a tree to save himself. The third friend cast the spell, and the revived, hungry lion instantly killed and ate the three clever Brahmins. After the lion left, the fourth Brahmin returned to the ashram, grieving for his foolish friends.

Question 2

- Question ID: BK02_CH02_LA_002
- Type: Long Answer
- Difficulty: Easy
- Bloom Level: Understanding
- Topic: Comprehensive Analysis 2
- Marks: 5

Question: Describe the characters of the four Brahmins in detail.

- Answer Key: The four Brahmins represent two different kinds of knowledge. The first three Brahmins were intellectually clever and acquired impressive magical skills quickly. However, they were arrogant, vain, and completely lacked common sense and foresight. The fourth Brahmin was simple-minded and lacked magic, but he possessed deep practical wisdom, humility, and observational common sense. While the three magic users used their skills recklessly to show off, the fourth Brahmin anticipated danger, warned his companions, and saved his own life by climbing a tree.

Question 3

- Question ID: BK02_CH02_LA_003
- Type: Long Answer
- Difficulty: Easy
- Bloom Level: Understanding
- Topic: Comprehensive Analysis 3
- Marks: 5

Question: Describe the three magical steps used to recreate the lion.

- Answer Key: The recreation of the lion happened in three distinct magical steps:

1. First Step: The first Brahmin used his magic to assemble the scattered animal bones into a complete skeleton.
2. Second Step: The second Brahmin used his magic to add internal organs, muscular tissue, and outer skin onto the skeleton, revealing a majestic lion's body.
3. Third Step: The third Brahmin chanted magic spells to infuse life into the lifeless body, turning it into a living, moving predator.

Question 4

- Question ID: BK02_CH02_LA_004
- Type: Long Answer
- Difficulty: Easy
- Bloom Level: Understanding
- Topic: Comprehensive Analysis 4
- Marks: 5

Question: Explain the warning given by the fourth Brahmin and how his friends reacted.

- Answer Key: When the third Brahmin prepared to bring the lion to life, the fourth Brahmin clearly warned them: 'Spare the dead! Do not resuscitate it or it will devour us all! Think of the consequences, please!' However, his three friends arrogantly ignored his warning, laughed at him, and called him a fool, claiming that only fools worry about consequences. Their pride prevented them from seeing the obvious danger.

Question 5

- Question ID: BK02_CH02_LA_005
- Type: Long Answer
- Difficulty: Easy
- Bloom Level: Understanding
- Topic: Comprehensive Analysis 5
- Marks: 5

Question: Why did common sense save the fourth Brahmin while magic killed the others?

- Answer Key: Common sense saved the fourth Brahmin because it allowed him to evaluate real-world cause and effect. He knew that a revived lion would naturally act on its predatory instincts and hunt for food. Since he could not stop his friends, common sense guided him to climb a tree for safety. In contrast, his friends were so blinded by their magical power that they forgot basic survival logic, resulting in their destruction.

Question 6

- Question ID: BK02_CH02_LA_006
- Type: Long Answer
- Difficulty: Easy
- Bloom Level: Understanding
- Topic: Comprehensive Analysis 6
- Marks: 5

Question: What moral lesson does the story teach about knowledge and wisdom?

- Answer Key: The story teaches that bookish knowledge or technical skill without practical wisdom and common sense is useless and dangerous. Having great knowledge or power means nothing if one does not know when and how to use it safely. Wisdom involves thinking about consequences, listening to good advice, and protecting life.

Question 7

Question: How did the lion behave when it was brought back to life?

- Answer Key: When the lion was brought back to life, it did not feel grateful to the Brahmins. Instead, acting as a starved, hungry predator, it looked at the three friends who were frozen in fear. It immediately pounced on them, killed all three, and devoured them completely before walking away into the forest.

Question: Analyze how intellectual vanity led to the destruction of the three Brahmins.

- Answer Key: The three Brahmins suffered from intellectual vanity—they believed their magical accomplishments made them superior to nature and common logic. When presented with the opportunity to revive a lion, their desire to show off their power completely overshadowed their instinct for self-preservation. Their vanity made them immune to valid warnings, directly causing their tragic demise.

Question: Compare the nature of theoretical knowledge versus practical wisdom.

- Answer Key: Theoretical knowledge (like the magic spells learned by the three Brahmins) consists of technical information and skills. Practical wisdom (demonstrated by the fourth Brahmin) consists of knowing how to apply knowledge safely, understanding human and animal nature, anticipating risks, and exercising self-restraint. Theoretical knowledge without practical wisdom is incomplete and hazardous.

Question: Discuss why natural instincts always override magic gratitude in wild animals.

- Answer Key: The third Brahmin assumed that bringing the lion back to life would earn its respect or obedience. However, a wild predator operates purely on biological instincts such as hunger and hunting drive. A revived starved lion sees nearby living beings simply as meat, proving that magical ambition cannot rewrite the fundamental laws of natural animal behavior.

Question: How does the fourth Brahmin's decision to climb a tree illustrate effective risk management?

- Answer Key: When faced with an unpreventable hazard created by his friends, the fourth Brahmin did not stay to argue or panic. He identified a physical sanctuary (the tall tree), executed a quick self-preservation move, and separated himself from the danger zone before the threat materialized. This is a classic example of sound risk management.

Question: Summarize Chapter 02 in four comprehensive bullet points.

- Answer Key: • Four disciples set out for town; three possessed magic skills while the fourth possessed common sense.

- Finding animal bones, the first three used magic to build a lion's skeleton, flesh, and life.
- The fourth Brahmin warned them of the deadly danger and climbed a tree for safety.
- The revived lion killed the three arrogant friends, leaving the wise fourth Brahmin to return home safely.

Question: Deconstruct the philosophical concept of 'Reductio ad Absurdum' in moral fable storytelling.

- Answer Key: In fable storytelling, authorial strategy often pushes foolish behavior to its ultimate logical absurdity (rebuilding a deadly lion) to highlight the contrast between arrogance and prudence. By taking technical skill to a extreme, dangerous conclusion, the fable proves beyond doubt that unguided intellect leads to self-annihilation.

Question: Evaluate the psychological dynamic of mob mentality among the three clever friends.

- Answer Key: The three magic users reinforced each other's hubris, creating a collective mob mentality. Once the first rebuilt the skeleton, the second felt compelled to restore flesh, and the third felt pressured to give life. None dared to stop, illustrating how group vanity suppresses individual risk awareness.

Question: Examine the ethical responsibility of creators toward their creations.

- Answer Key: The story serves as an early allegory for creator responsibility. Creating life or unleashing powerful systems without building containment mechanisms or understanding the creation's inherent nature is unethical and self-destructive. Creators bear total responsibility for the forces they unbind.
